ENGAGEMENT OF WAGNER SINGERS.

For his musical excursion through the counry next spring, under the management of Mr.

Locke, of San Francisco, Theodore Thomas has engaged three of the most eminent of living German singers, namely, Frau Friedrich-Materna, Herr Winkelmann and Herr Scaria. These three artists are at present members of the Imperial Opera at Vienna, and their names for the last eight years have been intimately associated with the festival performances of Wagner's operas in Europe. They were in the first the "Ring of the Niblung," performances of at Bayreuth in 1876; afterward in the London festival, at which selections from all of Wagner's operas were given, and two years ago they assisted at the first performance of "Parsifal." They are properly looked upon as the best exponents of Wagner's music in the world. When Mr. Thomas was abroad last summer he submitted propositions to them for an engagement for fifty concerts, between the middle of April and the end of June. Terms were agreed on, and the eminent trio have secured leave of absence for three months from the management of the Imperial Opera. Yesterday Mr. Thomas received a cable dispatch stating that the contracts had been signed. The plans for the spring campaign of this gigantic combination are complete in outline. They embrace a participation of the three singers and Mr. Thomas's orchestra in the blennial music festivals to be given in Chechanati and Chicago in May. In fact, the needs of these festivals were the mainspring in the movement that brought about their engagement. At these festivals one concert will be devoted to Wagner's music, as was the case here as well as in those cities at the festival of 1882. There will be no as in those cities at the festival of 1882. There will be no festival here, but the presence of the artists, who are looked upon in the musical world as specialists, will doubtless have an influence upon the schemes of the New-York and Brooklyn Philharmonic Societies. In fact all of Mr. Thomas's concerts in the Eastern cities will be strongly thetured with what once was "the music of the future," but is now emphatically the nusic of the present.

was "the music of the future," but is now emphatically the nuisic of the present.

The singers will leave Vienna about April 1, and their first joint appearance in the country will be in Boston on April 14. They will then come here, next sing in Brocklyn, and afterward will appear in the following cities: Philadelphia, Washington Baltimore, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington Baltimore, Pittsburg, Chiennati, Memphis, Atlanta, New-Orleans, St. Cheinnati, Memphis, Atlanta, New-Orleans, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louis, Buffalo, Toronto and Montreal. Their Wagner Chicago, Buffalo, Toronto and Montreal. Their Wagner repertory will consist of selections from "Tannhäuser," "Tristau und Isolde," (in the performance of which they are now helping at Vienna) the Niblung tetralogy, and possibly "Parsifal."

ITALIAN OPERA.

The performances of Italian opera last night consisted of a repetition of "Mignon" at the Metropolitan Opera House, and of "La Sonnambula" at the Academy of Music. The largest and most brilliant audience was at the first-mentioned place where Madame Nilsson gave her admired impersonation of the stunted character which passes as Goethe's Mignon. It is needless to reiterate that the creature of the opera, lovely as she becomes through the genius of Madame Nilsson, is not the deeply poetical creature of the novel. The admiration which the gifted singer compels by her performance is not based upon her realization of the traits of Goethe's heroine, but upon her realization of a different yet beautiful ideal. The distribution of parts last night was the same as in the earlier performances this season, and the opera was given with extraordinary this season, and the opera was given with extraordinary spirit and enthusiasm.

The words which are the due of Madame Gerster whenever she presents Anima are those of the highest and most unqualined admiration. The character in its dramatic, and also its musical element, is one for which this charming woman has a truer, clearer and more cloquent expression than any other in her list. Her Anima is a perfect performance; perfect in loveliness, naturalness and gracefulness. It has had no rival in the performances of at least a decade.

A woman dressed like a tramp was killed by a locomotive in the Pounsylvania Railroad cut, Jersey TWO MORE ARRESTS MADE. THE BROOKVILLE MURDER MYSTERY.

SUSPICIONS AGAINST A MAN AND HIS WIFE-THE FUNERAL-M'CORMACK SET FREE.

William H. Lambertson and his wife Mary were arrested at Brookville, L. I., early yesterday morning on suspicion of being concerned in the brutal murder of Mrs. Maybee and her daughter on Saturday. They were taken to Oyster Bay, and after being privately examined, were released on giving bail to the amount of $200 each. Their sureties were Edgar H. Tappan and John L. Bogart. When released they went home. The amount of evidence against them is not great. The wife has some suspicious marks upon her face and on one of her hands. This would hardly be considered enough to warrant an arrest, but the character of the husband is that of a hard fellow, and the wife has been a waiter in a liquor shop in East Broadway, this city. While at Oyster Bay Lambertson said that he was married on September 19. His wife's maiden name was Hays. He had been settled in the house where he is now living only two weeks. His house is less than thirty rods from the Maybee place. On Saturday he was working in the fields of Mr. Bogart, husking corn. He went to his work early in the morning, and had not been long engaged when he was sent for to help kill pigs. He had his dinner about 2 o'clock and then went back to Mr. Bogart's corn fields. He worked on after dusk until he heard the steam whistle of the Glen Cove starch works, which blows at this time of the year at half-past 5 o'clock. Then he went to his supper. It was not ready, and he had not finished eating when Mr. Tappan came in with the news that Mr. Maybee was half killed by robbers, the house robbed and the women not to be found. He immediately went with Mr. Tappan to the place. When asked about the marks upon his wife's face and hands, he said that she told him she ran against the clothes line in front of their house. As for the mark on the hand he had done that himself with his pen-knife in rough play.

Miss Bogart, daughter of Lambertson's employer, is said to have noticed Lambertson working at husking corn in her father's field when she was driving to the depot to meet her father at 5 o'clock. While the Lambertsons were at Oyster Bay their house was thoroughly searched, but nothing was found of a suspicious character. The man has been twice in trouble, it is said, for beating his father.

Mrs. Lambertson was questioned by Coroner Baylis and Colonel Townsend privately. Both of them informed a THIBUNE reporter that she accounted for the marks on her face she accounted for the marks on her face and hand in the same way as her husband. It is believed that more is known than Colonel Town-send has thought judicious to make public. The people in Brookville say that a country detective named Payn has been working up the Lambertson business, and that the arrests were made in pursu-ance of hisrevelations. The theory of the detective is that the pair knowing the defenceless condition of the Mayles family and hardons evagorating of the Maybee family, and perhaps exaggerating their reputation for wealth, fixed up a plan which was carried into effect by some of their desperate associates in the city. THE FUNERAL OF THE VICTIMS.

In consequence of the repeatedly expressed wish of the relatives that the funeral services should not be attended by those who were not connected nearly with the Maybee family, there were no persons present in the parlor at the appointed hour for the funeral-1 o'clock-save these who could claim a right or had been specially invited. There were four clergymen present-the Rev. C. S. Wightman, Baptist, of Oyster Bay; the Rev. Alexander G. Russell, Presbyterian, of the same place; the Rev. I. Williams, of Glen Cove, and the Rev. R. M. Geer, rector table embodying the sliding scales of Saratoga and the iams, of Gler Cove, and the Rev. R. M. Geer, rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Oyster Bay. Though the number of persons present in the parlor was limited there were hundreds of persons in the vicinity of the house or waiting in the cemetery. Both coffins were cloth-covered, with silver plates and handles. Upon the mother's was a wheat sheaf; upon the daughter's a wreath of camelhas and smilax. Those who bore the mother's coffin were W. H. Remsen, John L. Bogart, Andrew J. Bogart, Jackson Hongland, Morris Simonson and Nicholson Van Cott. The daughter's coffin was carried by E. M. Griffin, James B. Lyster, Andrew J. Remsen, Daniel Lyster, John Downing and Samuel Van Cott. The committee on Rules was instructed to prepare from the rules of the Louisville Jockey Club, Saratoga and the scale for Descenber, January Pebruary, March and April. LYDDY BROTHERS' PREPOSTEROUS CLAIM. To the Editor of The Tribune.

Six: Referring to the extravagant claim of Lyddy Brothers for costs, counsel fees and expenses in proceedings instituted by them to secure a judicial final decision as to the term of office of the late Surrogate of the County of New York, it is well to know that the whole question now restain the dis-cretion of the Board of Estimate and Apportforment. By the act of the Legislature to which you have editorially referred (chapter 410, Laws of 1883) that is "authorized to audit and allow Board as charges against the city and county of as charges against the city and county of New-York the reasonable costs, counselfees and expenses paid or incurred in or by reason of the logal proceedings heretofore had in the courts of this state in the year 1881 regarding the term of office of the Surrogate of the County of New-York."

It will be recoffected that the proceedings were instituted hately for the benefit of a private individual and not to uphold or serve a public internst. The case is entitled in The People ex red, Charles foscularaz, respondent, va. Joseph B. Carr, Secretary of State, etc., appellant," and is reported in volume 86 of the New-York Reports, page 512. It was argued on October 28, 1881, before the Court of Appeals, and decided on October 28, three days afterward. The question evidently did not perplex the mind of the Court, as the opinion occupies only three pages of the report, and all the judges concurred. A careful reading of the opinion of Judge Rapallo shows that the decision of the Court rests upon familiar principles of law and construction about which me goal lawyer could have any doubt. Any reputable lewyer would be glad to conduct the proceedings to 2a final determination for one-direction of the stan demanded by the claimants. In the judgment of intelligent lawyers who understand the history and nature of the eligibility, in the legislature has given it neither character nor validity.

FRANKLIN B. GOWEN TO RESIGN.

THE READING IN A SUFFICIENTLY PROSPEROUS CONDITION TO DISPENSE WITH HIS SERVICES. Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—Franklin B. Gowen has issued a circular dated to-day in which he announces his intention of resigning the presidency of the Reading Railroad at the expiration of his present term. He recommends George DeB. Keim, the vice-president, as his successor. He takes this step beeause the company "has now surmounted all the difficulties of the last four eventful years." In his circular Mr.

Gowen says:

I am glad to be able to announce that the net earnings of the company for the current fiscal year, ending November 30, after providing for all fixed charges, will be equal to 7 per cent upon the preferred stock, and fully 5 per cent upon the common stock of the company. As these net earnings are piedged to the nayment of the outstanding income mortgage bonds ($2,454,000), such bonds must be retired before a dividend can be made to the shareholders. I entertain no doubt, however, that the outstanding income mortgage bonds can be provided for out of the proceeds of other securities available for the purpose and the surplus of net earnings over fixed charges carried to the credit of a dividend fund and in this event it is probable that the opinion of the stockholders will be taken at the forthcoming annual meeting upon the question of the payment of a dividend and the proper amount thereof.

EVACUATION DAY PLANS.

ALL THE ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED.

THE STREET AND MARINE PARADES TO BE HELD

SIMULTANEOUSLY. The Committee of Arrangements having charge of the Evacuation Day Centennial celebration was in session last night at the Victoria Hotel, General Cochrane presiding. Norman Fountain, whose application for an appropriation to enable him to print 10,000 copies of a "poem" to commemorate the celebration was so summarily rejected by the committee a few evenings ago, was present, nothing abashed by the scant appreciation of his poetic powers. He wished to remain throughout the meeting in order to obtain points for his " poem." The committee, however, passed a resolution requesting him to withdraw, and he left the room protesting.

Additional subscriptions were reported amounting to $1,700. The committee appropriated $500 to provide for striking off medals commemorative of the centennial celebration. The committee to which had been referred the question of giving an exhibition of fireworks reported that it would not be expedient to attempt any display unless the voluntary contributions should exceed $12,000. It was decided that $6,000 should be retained by the committee to provide for the proper entertainment of visiting officials and organizations, and for other contingencies, and that no appropriation should be made that would diminish this balance. Colonel Varnum stated that the $20,000 balance. Colonel varnum stated that the $20,000 allowed for the celebration by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment had been appropriated as follows: $5,000 for music for the National Guard of the 1st and 1ld Divisions; $1,000 for music for veterans of the National Guard; $1,500 for music for the Grand Armyof the Republic; $600 for music for the Fire Department; $250 for music for various departments; $1,000 for the erection of stands of observation; $1,000 for the argetylaments of visit.

the Fire Department; $250 for music for various departments; $1,000 for the erection of stands of observation; $4,000 for the entertainment of visiting troops at the Madison Square Garden and elsewhere; $2,500 for reception in the Seventh Regiment Armory; $250 for music for veterans of the late war; $104 for music for veterans of the Mexican war; and the balance in various ways for the entertainment of the city's guests.

The committee, Secretary Stevens said, had asked for further subscriptions amounting to $15,000. Of this sum only $8,000 had been obtained, of which $6,000 had been collected by personal solicitation. If large additional subscriptions were not forthcoming, the entertainment of the city's guests could not be provided for in a manner worthy of the city. He asked that intending subscribers would not wait for personal solicitation, as the committee had made an carnest appeal for further subscriptions.

The question of having two parades one in the streets and one in the river, has been settled by the action of the Steam Vessel Owners' Association, which has reported the programme of a parade to begin at the same hour that the one in the streets will begin. John H. Starin was chosen Admiral. The lines will form at 9:30 a.m. from a barge anchored abreast of Bedloe's Island. The course will be up the North River to Sixty-fifth-st., down near the New-York shore, around the Battery, passing the flag-ship to be anchored at that point, where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the East River to I'where the review will be made; up the E AN APPEAL FOR HOUSE DECORATION.

lyn Board of Aldermen has ordered a display of dags on the City Hall and the Municipal Department Building.

The firework-display witnessed 100 years ago has been recalled. On December 3, 1783, there was an exhibition of fireworks at Bowling Green in Broadway, in celebration of the definite treaty of peace. It began by a dove descending with an olive branch which communicated the fire to a marroon battery. The first set opened with a salute of thirteen rockets. Several thirteen pound rockets were fired off later, one at a time. The display was said to exceed any former exhibition in the United States. It began at 6 o'clock in the evening and lasted an hour. The pieces displayed were tweety-five exhibition pieces, 1,000 rockets, eighteen balloons of fireworks, fifty-four torbillons, four gerbes, two marroon batteries, one feu de joie of rockets, and a flight of rockets.

ALEXANDRE DUMAS, PERE.

From The London Globe.

The lad who came to Paris with 153 francs, as whole fortune of his widowed mother, has been im-The lad who came to faris with 103 france, the whole fortune of his wildowed mother, has been immortalized in bronze by another great artist, also laid low, Gustave Bore. Dumas has been portrayed in a silting posture on a very high pedestal. His powerful head is turned toward the flonievard Malesherbes. At his feet a group of two young people and a working man bend over one of his books. Behind his chair is D'Artagnan, leaning on his sword. On each side of the monutiocul is a marble slab, with the titles of Dumas' works energawed in gold.

D'Artagnan, leaning on his sword. On cach side of the monutional is a marble slab, with the littles of Dunnas works engraved in gold.

D'Artagnan behind Dunnas—two men whose careers resembled each other in more respects than one—met together in tronze. For D'Artagnan is by no means the myth some people would make out. Those curious in such matters may go to the British Museum. In the calalogue, under letter A. they will find "Memoires de Monsieur d'Artagnan, Capitaine—Lieutenant de la Première Compagnie des Monsquetaires du Roi," publishest at the "Sphere," in Amsterdam and Cologne. Perhaps they had better not, for they would probably be disappointed. Because the real D'Artagnan is very unilke the Gascon cadet whom Dunnas has shown us. He was merely a vallant soldier, fond of adventure, but in love neither with Madame Boufface nor with Milady de Winter. As for the exploits he made him perform, Dunnas had no need to invent. His own father had performed one that had surpassed them all. M. Dunnas gifs has in his possession a letter from the General of Division Joubert, under whose orders his grandfather served with his brigade, which recounts the herole defence of the bridge of Erixen, in the Tyrol. "Dunnas, attacked by twenty-two Austrians, killed three, wounded eight and put the remainder' to flight. The General," adds the writer, "very much regrets a pair of pistois he lost in the metee." "When I told the story of the bas-taken four musketeers to make the affair less exaggerated, and still my father did more than this. He reloaded the rifles of the killed and wounded Austrians, a fea which has been pronounced impossible to four such men as Athos, Porthos, Aramis and D'Artagnan."

Nor are the three former altogether such creatures of the brain as one would think. M. Auguste Magnet, Dumas' principal collaboratour in "The Three Musketeers," is not unlike Athos, physically as well as morally. Though many years have passed since the work first saw the light, those who knew M. Magnet but, a short time ago, could trace the resemblance. When the Prussians occupied his residence at St. Meane they often looked at a large picture representing The Musketeers. "This tail, serious, thin one is Athos; he looks like you," they said.

The collaborateurs lived at a short distance from each other; Dumas at St. Germain, in his Chatcau de Monte Christo, which he had made a marvel; M. Magnet at Bougival, whence he removed after his friend's death. Twenty times a day messengers could be seen clambering up the hill that led to Dumas abode, with copy sticking out of their pockets, and hastily scribbled notes in their hands. "Whereabout are you with Chicot I Don't you think it is time he should reappear I" Answer—"Chloot reappears to-morrow." "And D'Artagnani Has he returned from England!" "He comes back to-day. Do not forget Caconnas," "I have made up my mind. I have Louis XIV. arrested, "Are you mad! Louis XIV. arrested, the Grand Rot!" "Trust to me, Bragel lone will manage it beautifully." Thus fact and fancy were mingled. Thus fact and fancy were mingled. Thus fact and fancy will be mingled on Sunday in the speeches that "ill be delivered. One ancedote of Dumas' greatest work in conclusion. When the work was offered to Perrée, the directeur of The Siècle, he objected greatly to the title. "Athos, Porthos and Aranis. What names are these I" "The names of three musketeers of Louis XIV.'s time; and everything leads me to believe that they will become famous." "With these names!" "You are mistaken, Dumas. The public would not understand them. Your heroes are musketeers. "Easily said, but there are four, one named D'Artagnan. I can't possibly call it "The Four Musketeers." "Every well; you only promise three, and give them four. The public will see that you collaborateurs lived at a short distance from each

INCENDIARIES CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Detroit, Nov. 21 .- Ex-Deputy-Sheriff George lickenger and Night Watchman Henry Kerback were raught in the act of setting fire to J. Hanselmann's furni ure store at Manistee early this morning. They had poured a barrel of varnish on the floor, covered it with caught in the act by an officer who had been watching the place for a week, a previous attempt having been made to fire the premises. The men claim that Hansel-man, who is a prominent business-man, hired them to commit the act, agreeing to give them $250. Hanselman also has been arrested.

A REPORTED EMBEZZLEMENT.

It was reported yesterday that Charles R. Chubbuck, who has been for several years the confiden-tial clerk of John T. Robin, a Custom House and insurance broker at No. 3412 Pine-st., had mysteriously disappeared, ogether with several thousand dollars belonging customers of Mr. Robin, and United States registered tomer. Chubbuck, who is only twenty-six years old, was lately given a small interest in the business and was en-Mr. Robin's name during his temporary absence from the city. Recently Mr. Robin went to Saratoga for a few Mr. Robin's name during his temporary absence from the city. Recently Mr. Robin went to Saratoga for a few days, and it is said that Chubbuck's visits to a certain gambling resort in West Twenty-lifth-si, became noticeable at about the same time. On Mr. Robin's return he found the books in some confusion, and called upon Chubbuck for an explanation. Chubbuck stated that he had got into trouble with a woman, and intimated that she had blackmailed him. He said that the shortage would not exceed $1,000, and that he would give up all he had to make good Mr. Robin's loss, and would leave the city to begin an honest life elsewhere. Mr. Robin said that it would be better for Chubbuck to remain and straighten out the accounts. Chubbuck agreed to this. Since that time he has not been seen in this city, it is said, and claims which have been made upon Mr. Pobin by importing houses and others who have entrusted business and funds to his office show that the embezzlement has amounted to at least $12,000. There is some reason to believe that Guibbuck less gove to Chicago, and the police of that city have been requested to lock for him.

THE DETENTION OF A SCHOONER.

Consul-General Bassett, of Hayti, yesterday called upon Collector Robertson with what he believed to be sufficient proof as to the nature of the cargo of the vessel. T. B. Brown, one of the shippers of the cargo ressel. T. B. Brown, one of the subppers of the cargo, presented a declaration that there was nothing in the cargo of a contraband nature, and requested that the vessel should be released. Collector Robertson informed them that the detention of the vessel was in accordance with the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Brown then applied to the United States District-Attorney for the release of the vessel. Mr. Root began an investigation of the charges made by the Haytian Consul, and if they are not substantiated the vessel will be immediately released.
